

Paws & Pints:

Britain's pub-loving dogs by region

Foodie dogs in Manchester

38%

of Manchester dogs, crowned as foodies, love tasting dog-friendly treats and snacks the most when visiting the pub.

Liverpudlian pups love long walks of scouse dogs are super energetic, loving long runs and big open spaces on countryside walks.

49%

West Midlands dogs are regulars of West Midland dog owners visit the pub with their dogs weekly or more.

20%

Country-loving dogs in the South West of dogs in the South West are full of energy on countryside walks, enjoying long runs and open spaces.

44%

Excitable pups in the North East of dogs in the North East of England get excited when they arrive at the pub.

24%

Yorkshire dogs are snackers

27%

of Yorkshire dog owners are drawn to pubs with a dog-friendly menu or snacks.

East Midlands' top breed

12%

of dog owners in East Midlands own a Cocker Spaniel, making it the most popular breed in the region.

Sociable pups in Brighton

45%

of Brighton dogs love meeting and interacting with new people when visiting the pub, making them the friendliest in the UK.

Greater London pups are family of Londoners view their pups as part of the family and believe they belong with them when visiting a pub.

50%